Conversation Notes (by Ed Ginouves):

I called Mr. Turner to discuss the Red Emerald mine site, which has been inactive for several years. One of the two owners, Melvin Marlow Cropper, had passed away in May, 2012. Here is what I learned from Mr. Turner:

- the other owner of the property, Earle Foster, Jr., who lived in Anchorage Alaska, passed away in April 2013 at age 86.
- The mine property was willed to Marlow Cropper's son, Kelly Cropper, and Earle Foster's granddaughter. Mr. Turner suggested that I contact Kelly Cropper, who resides in Las Vegas, about near-term plans for the property. Kelly's number is 702-292-4009. Mr. Turner believes the property is on the market to be sold.
- Mr. Turner is still the point of contact for permit-related correspondence. He takes care of the annual filings for the claims.
- He believed that Clint Christensen, the former GMI Mine Manager, watches the property and has a gate key. Mr. Turner thought a copy of the gate key was also at the Chevron in Minersville.
